What Does it all mean?

It is not generally known that a bill was lobbied through at the last session of the Legislature in the interest of corporations organized to supply water to towns. It extends the pow of it. ers granted to the railroad companies to such corporations supplying towns of over 3,000 population, with water for domestic irrigating of manufacturing purposes, the condemnation of land by appraisal of value, &c., which act was approved April 3rd, 1884, and is now in force. Under this act, if Socorro becomes disincorporated any ation is dissolved all municipal government is destroyed, and we retrogade back as a precinct, thereby losing all rights and priviloges heretofore acquired, and leaving our future destiny in the hands of two or three moreonary county commissioners who may be triends or enemies of the city. Is it possible that certain parties, failing to secure our water privileges through the city authorities have resorted to Legislative enactments to aid them in their scheme? If not why was the disincorporation act passed, and right on the heels of the same, an act giving water companies the power to seize and condemn lands in spite of the protest of the people or the owners of such lands? We may be mistaken, but taken altogether it would seem that there may be a dark and damuable plot at the bottom of all this, instigated for the express purpose of robbing and plundering the city and the people of their just rights, and we are pleased to see the officers of the city and citizens aroused in the public interest in time to

The track has been washed out at many Candaleria Garcia Probate Judge different points, and the construction and repair department of the road have been taxed to the utmost. Several bridges have been more or less damaged, and some of them, notably that of Isleta, are in a very precarious condition. The lands between the depot and the river near Socorro, are under water, but the city itself is too high to be damaged. Durin' the first rise of the river an acequia near the depot broke, causing the water to flow through a couple of blocks near that point, but the injury was since then repaired, and the last rise has not given any further trouble. As for outside reports to the effect that Socorro is in danger of being inundated-they are supremely ridiculous, and no one that un derstands the lay of the land will take any stock in them. As the plaza which is about the center of the city, is some sixty feet higher than the present high water, it may be readily understood that when Socorra is mundated there will not be a vestage of the river valley remaining The probabilities are that the present-M W Browne ten days longer, after which we can ex From reliable information just received we learn that the people of San Marcial are in a most deplorable condition, and if there should be any considerable rise above the pr sent high water mark, the loss will be very serious.
